ANZ ranked No. 1 for overall relationship quality in Singapore

ANZ also maintains No. 1 position for overall relationship quality in Asia for the third consecutive year

ANZ today announced it has been named the 2020 leader for overall relationship quality in Singapore, according to the latest Greenwich Associates Large Corporate Banking study.

The Bank also maintained its position as a top five Corporate Bank in Asia for the eighth consecutive year and was ranked No. 1 for overall relationship quality in Asia for the third year.

Vishnu Shahaney, Head of South East Asia, India and the Middle East, ANZ said: "We are pleased at this recognition and that our corporate and institutional customers value us and our international network."

"With ASEAN's share of global GDP expected to continue rising over the coming decade, Singapore remains an important gateway to the region for our multinational customers and key to our focus on facilitating trade and capital flows across the Asia Pacific."

Greenwich Associates, a global market intelligence provider, interviewed over 830 Asia-based companies and foreign subsidiaries across 11 markets with turnover of more than US$500 million per year.

Greenwich Associates defines "overall quality" as relationship quality of both an institution and an individual relationship manager. The framework for overall quality includes management effectiveness and ease of doing business, among other criteria.
