Greenwich Associates Research ranks ANZ No. 1 for overall relationship quality in Singapore for 2nd consecutive year

ANZ also maintains position as top 4 Corporate Bank in Asia for fifth consecutive year

ANZ today announced it has maintained its leadership position as No. 1 for overall relationship quality in Singapore for the 2nd consecutive year, according to the 2016 Greenwich Associates Large Corporate Banking study.

ANZ also maintained its position as No. 4 Corporate Bank in Asia for the 5th consecutive year.

David Green, Chief Executive Officer, Singapore and Head of South East Asia, India and the Middle East, ANZ said: "Singapore is a key business hub for ANZ in Asia and an important market for our regional and multinational customers."

"Our Asian network remains a long-term competitive strength in connecting customers doing business from Singapore to opportunities in the ASEAN region and into our home markets of Australia and New Zealand. The evolving nature of banking means we are focusing on specific customers, markets and capabilities which play to our strengths, and these results show that this strategy is continuing to deliver results and add great value to our customers," Mr Green said.

Greenwich Associates, a global market intelligence provider, interviewed over 700 Asia-based companies and foreign subsidiaries with turnover of more than US$500 million per year for the independent annual survey.

The survey found that customers in Singapore are looking for banks which go beyond the fundamentals and provide high-value ideas and advice about how to advance their businesses. These customers also place greater emphasis on turnaround times and efficiency.
