

Sam Garland

CA

Group General Manager, Internal Audit

Skills, experience and expertise

Sam Garland leads ANZ's global internal audit function, providing independent assurance to the Board on the effectiveness of internal control and risk management that underpins the ANZ Group's strategic success.

Until 2025, Sam was the Banking and Capital Markets Leader for PwC Australia – leading PwC's analysis, perspectives and engagement with the Banking industry and its stakeholders.

In Sam's career at PwC, he led relationships with clients across the Banking and Capital Markets sector, providing assurance and advice to executives and boards on risk management, regulation, culture, and complex change and their impact on operating and business models. This included assignments for regulators as an independent party to assess root causes, governance, culture, and accountability.

Sam has worked with retail, commercial, and wholesale banks including Australian majors, international and local banks.

Sam's expertise includes risk management transformation (financial and non-financial), financial statement and regulatory assurance, banking product reviews, process and control optimisation, securitisation and secured funding, cultural assessments, and forensic investigations.

Sam is a Chartered Accountant (CA) and alumni of Leeds University (2005), Manchester Business School (2007), and INSEAD Executive Education (Singapore).
